A Special Training For Working With The Trauma Of War

We are facing a national crisis as over a million service men and women return home, bearing the traumatic wounds of war. To help meet this profound challenge, we are offering a two-day, intensive workshop.

Treatment of war trauma requires specific perceptions, tools and safeguards. Dr. Levine will demonstrate these techniques in live sessions with veterans. Dr. Levine will be assisted by Vanessa Hughes, MFT. Vanessa is an SEP who has served in the Marine Corps and has done extensive therapeutic work with this population.

The class also includes lectures, film and panel discussions amongst vets and select SEP's who have worked with active duty and veteran populations.

CEU's are available.

SERVING THOSE WHO SERVED

Handout for Networker Symposium sharing. Independent endeavor by Ralph Wilson, ND. Inspired by Dr. Levine but -- Not vetted by Somatic Experiencing Trauma Institute. I am in process of learning the Somatic Experiencing approach to treating trauma. My Vietnam Era military experience is mentioned on the back of this document. www.DCNN.pro

The EVP PROJECT

To the best of my ability I offer to assist veterans, their families and communities to gain access to information and methods that can help them move forward to full, rich lives regardless the types of traumas that they experienced. This includes any dates of service, whether during official time of war or not, and no matter what type of discharge they may have been given after enlisting. Care will be individualized from the following options.

- Craniosacral Therapy with Somato-Emotional Release
- FlexAware® neurostructural rehab and fitness coaching
- Heart Rate Variability testing and home care instructions
- AcuGraph digital meridian imaging
- Homeopathic consultation
- Available online or in person. Phone, Skype, email, in-office
- Reduced fees for services, counseling and consultations. Pro bono when possible. [• Note: Lab tests/imaging can be ordered]

EXPANDED VETERANS TRAUMA PROJECT [EVP]

[this handout is for Psychotherapy Networker sharing -- Not vetted by Somatic Experiencing Trauma Institute]

Welcome. This project and my Internet sites all aim to give you more options for your life or the lives of your loved ones. My e-book, Heroism and the Home Front [unpublished], explains that I consider as veterans all the people who have served in intense commitment as either: A) Uniformed service; B) Civil Rights struggles; or C) Health Care Freedom of Choice struggles. In addition, any of those veterans themselves would likely tell you that anyone else who has been attacked or threatened whether at home, school, workplace or out in public can experience similar long-term consequences.

My background: I'm a veteran and a licensed health care practitioner. I'd been a Boy Scout and Explorer Scout and later was an assistant scout leader. My military service included training w Army Airborne at Ft. Benning and jungle warfare training in Panama with Army, Navy SEALs and others back in the 1960s -- prior to the Tet Offensive. [I earned my Airborne wings as Stick Leader of 12 mostly African-American men; when we finished they went to Vietnam.] I was commissioned in the Air Force and had SERE and pararescue medical field training but never had a combat assignment. The traumas of the "Vietnam Era" were beyond words to describe, for uniformed and civilians. Today the world is increasingly complex and once again uniformed veterans are returning to live within the society for which they had placed their intelligence and physical bodies at risk. My drive to serve our nation and the cause of world healing led me to connect with several systems of health support and the organizations that teach those unique approaches for individual and social health. DCNN is a place where I help you find resources for your own health or to enhance your service to others so that we can build a better world.
